

MINING INSTITUTE COMES TO CLOSE WITH VISIT TO CONTINENTAL MINE.

Papers Read This Morning on Purchasing Supplies and Mining Towns.

SAVING OF PURCHASING AGENT

Illustrated by Officials of West Virginia Mining Company—Technical Subject of Mine Ventilation Will Be Taken up at Winter Meeting.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, June 29.—The summer meeting of the Mining Institute of America came to a close a few minutes after 12 o'clock today. This afternoon following an excursion to the Continental mine of the H. C. Erickson Company the members will leave for their homes. It has been a most successful meeting. Three papers, technical in nature, were discussed in a lively fashion by the members of the institute. One of these, "Mine Layout," by W. J. Fohl of Pittsburgh, was held over until the winter meeting of the institute when it will be taken up for more thorough technical discussion.

The final session opened with a good attendance shortly after 9 o'clock. P. N. Fitch, purchasing agent for the Elkins Coal & Coke Company, read a paper on "Waste Material and Supplies." He outlined the policy followed by the company for which he acts. There is a constant loss, Fitch says, at industrial plants where supplies and materials are not systematically purchased. System should be followed in the purchase of supplies and in their issuance to the plant or plants for which they are kept on hand.

There is also frequently a loss of time in operation where adequate supplies are not kept on hand. At the Elkins works about 20,000 items are kept in stock representing a value of $25,000. Mr. Fitch said there is a loss of about 50 per cent. in purchasing from the small local dealer and in buying supplies in bulk and in advance for future need.

The Elkins supplies are distributed from a central store house. They are bought in car load lots. No sub-stations are kept at any of the plants. An order must have the endorsement of the general superintendent or other high officials before supplies will be issued. Local buyers or foremen can not secure supplies or material on demand. In the first 18 months the present system was in force at the Elkins plants a saving of $1,600 was effected in old material and saving of old machinery from the scrap heap. The cost of the department the first year was $1,675 and the net saving $7,120.

W. M. Judd of Pittsburgh read a paper on "Mine Towns and Mining Houses." He said there was progress in the layout and condition of mining towns in Pennsylvania. Sanitary conditions have been improved in recent years and the quality of the houses in which the employees live are better.

W. E. Fohl presented a plan of "A Mine Layout," dealing principally with the ventilation of coal mines. The discussion was technical and the members were divided in their views as to the availability of using swing-line doors for ventilating purposes. Fohl holds that they take the high pressure of air off the main haulage ways which is to be desired. This topic was over again until the winter meeting of the institute when it will be discussed more fully and presented more in detail, accompanied by illustrations and a technical paper on the subject.

Resolutions were passed thanking the Burgess of Uniontown, Town Council and others for their courtesies and thanking the members who prepared papers. Ten new members were admitted to membership. The members will go to Continental at 2:15 this afternoon on special cars for an inspection of that plant.

Tuesday Afternoon Session.
"Mine Fires" on which Thomas K. Adams, of Mercer, one of the most prominent mine inspectors of America, read a paper was the subject at Tuesday afternoon's session. Mr. Adams' statements concerning the manner in which to handle fires to prevent loss of life and property were unanimously approved by the institute. In the discussion that followed the paper, Mr. Adams stated that the majority of the men in charge of mines were not old enough nor did they educate their men to think. "Train your men and you will (Continued on Fifth Page.)"

SPECULATING IN NUMBER OF ROUNDS

It Will Take Jeff or Johnson to Land a Knock-out.

GLASS THROWN TO WINDS

Out in Reno Where Millionaires Rub Elbows With Panhandlers and Tough Mugs—Jeffries May Have an Operation Performed on Arm.

RENO, Nevada, June 29.—Opinions as to the duration of the Johnson-Jeffries fight differ. At the Jeffries camp no agreement has yet been reached as to the number of rounds. Some think that Jeffries is leading too much and that Johnson is training too hard. Many unusual talking pieces and phrases are puzzling the sport writers. One day the negro appears speedy and confident and the next he appears to go about his work with a halfhearted contempt.

Jeffries never loses confidence. The real betting will begin tomorrow. Some believe that the odds will reach ten to seven and others expect two to one. It is intimated that Jeff will attempt to end the battle inside of seven rounds. Johnson predicts that he will win in eighteen rounds. It is rumored that Jeffries right elbow is swollen and needs an operation.

Opinions concerning Johnson's condition are divided. His followers declare that he is better than ever. Others say that he only shows spirit at intervals. When he is engaged in a sparring contest he only cuts loose when his partner slings him. Other who are content with merely blocking and stopping the punches. Dr. Porter, who recently operated on Mrs. Jeffries was elected with Jeff last evening. It is rumored that Jeffries' arm will be tapped today. Burns and "tough mugs" are thick and gambling houses and gamblers are busy cleaning the victors of their ready funds. Millions rub elbows with panhandlers at Reno. Class is cast to the winds.

ROBERTS ON FOREIGN MINER

Teaching Him the English Language Adds to His Efficiency and Worth as a Miner—Speeches Happy and Serious That Were Made.

The luncheon tendered the members of the Mining Institute of America at the Uniontown Country Club last evening by the Coia Producers' Association eclipsed all the calculations of the hosts. Everybody came and then some, but the hospitality was equal to every demand. The luncheon was served on the broad veranda, and after coffee and cigars the hosts and guests assembled in the great main room of the club to hear and digest the wit and wisdom which the ingenuity and resourcefulness of Toastmaster Frederick C. Keighley dug out of the assembly. The burden of the addresses bore upon the practical and important work of educating the foreign miner to speak the English language, and making an intelligent and competent member of the industry.

This question was opened up broadly and discussed at length by Dr. Peter Roberts of the International Young Men's Christian Association, who has charge of the educational work among the foreigner, which work is a leading feature of the industrial department. He illustrated by charts the very practical method by which the foreign workmen are taught the English language. In 30 lessons he is successful in giving the average foreign workman an English vocabulary of 500 words, well understood and well spoken, a sufficient vocabulary for all ordinary purposes of communication. Considered merely as a commercial proposition, the education of the miner thus far was well worth the attention of the operators. "No man should be permitted in the pit who does not understand the English language," declared Dr. Roberts. In conclusion, he paid this eloquent tribute to the foreign workman: "We get him in the full strength of his manhood. Other nations have raised him at their expense, but he comes to us in the fullness of his vigor. Being so valuable to us, is not worth our while to make him as useful as possible and uplift him by every means at our command."

Dr. Roberts is an orator as well as an educator. He was born in Wales and still retains a faint burr in his accent. His remarks were listened to with great interest which was not lessened when Toastmaster Keighley informed the audience that Dr. Roberts had worked in the mines when a lad and had by industry and economy paid his way through Yale.

Dr. H. H. Stook was called upon to speak for the Dutch, but he spoke for Dr. J. A. Holmes, the institute's candidate for Chief of the new federal Bureau of Mines. Dr. Holmes was to have been present at the meeting, but found himself unable to come. Dr. Stook, who is the President of the institute, concluded by a brief but forcible discussion of the work of the laboratories in connection with the science of coal mining. He instanced the fact that Sir Humphrey Davy, the inventor of the safety lamp, which made mining practicable and profitable in many places where it would otherwise be impossible, had never been in a mine until he went to examine into and inquire the causes of mine explosions. He summed up by declaring that mining made the greatest and most gratifying progress when Theory and Practice went hand in hand in the work of development.

After some remarks by Dr. W. R. Crane, Dean of the Mining Department of State College, cordially endorsing the previous remarks concerning the desirability of mining as an intelligence and character, the miscellaneous master of ceremonies began to demand remarks from the members of the press present. Editor O'Donnell of the Uniontown Herald escaped by suggesting the editor of The Courier as a substitute. Editor Snyder dodged by saying that he didn't know a lot about the mining business, but was versed only in dry coko statistics for thirty years back, and they constituted too big a sum for one evening. He begged leave to print and backed off the stage. E. B. Day, editor of Coal & Coke, told an anecdote and passed the serious consideration of things to J. B. Johnston, editor of The Coal & Coke Operator, Pittsburgh, who made an earnest and forcible plea for the conservation of one of the wasted products of the Connellsville coke region, namely, the coke ashes or breeze which strew the yards and cover the highways. He declared that millions of dollars are thus being wasted every year in the Connellsville coke region.

INTELLIGENT MINERS AND ECONOMIC MINING.

The dominant note which has sounded throughout the sessions serious and social of the Coal Mining Institute of America is the education of the miner.

"Train your men and you will profit in doing so," says Inspector Adams. "No man should be allowed in the pit without knowing the English language," declares Educator Roberts. "Without the foreign workman, it would be impossible to man the plants of the Conneltsville coke region," declares Operator Gray.

These are truthful and timely statements. The humanitarian educational work of the Young Men's Christian Association among the coal miners of the country, foreign born and otherwise, is worthy of the active cooperation and assistance of the mine owners both as good citizens and thrifty operators.

Intelligent miners are essential to intelligent mining and economical operation. The ignorant and careless miner has been the direct cause of numerous catastrophes which have cost hundreds of lives and millions of dollars. The employer and the employee have a mutual interest in the education of the miner. While it costs dollars to one it means life to the other.

The declaration of Doctor Roberts should, therefore, receive the earnest consideration of the coal operators. We are happy to say that it is receiving the attention of the large employers of mine labor in the Conneltsville region. It should receive the attention of all operators. Every employer should establish at every plant a school for the education of his workmen in the English language and the details of economical and safe mining.

Such instruction will perhaps only indirectly legislate on the subject. The solution of the question has been sufficient to arouse widespread interest, and if the commercial side does not regard human interest will compel it.

THE UNPARLIAMENTARY AND UNLAWFUL SECRETARY.

The Secretary of the School Board persists in calling the roll in an unparliamentary manner.

He started out by calling the names of all the regulars first in order to give weight and momentum to regulars' initiatives and measures; he has concluded, with a great show of public virtue, after the chief business has been transacted, by calling the roll backward, as it were; that is by calling the names of the insurgents first, then the names of the Regular lineup.

We four have given the President and the Secretary of the School Board credit with more breadth of character and a greater measure of ability than they are just now betraying. We are not interested in the petty factional combinations of the board, but in common with most good citizens we think the public business should be transacted, if not fairly and courteously, at least regularly and lawfully.

Parliamentary law is a part of the law of the land. It requires that in all public bodies representative of the people the roll shall be called alphabetically. This rule prevails in Congress in the State legislatures, in City Councils and in all deliberative assemblies of state or church. In National Conventions the roll is called by States, and in State Conventions by counties, but always in alphabetical order; and if there is a division in the State or county delegations, the delegates are polled alphabetically. The rule is universal, and we may add that it is founded in reason.

When the Clerk of the School Board calls the roll in an unparliamentary manner it is the duty of the President to call him to order and direct him to observe the parliamentary rules just as much as it is his duty as presiding officer to call to order any member who violates any other parliamentary procedure.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin was a wise man, because he was never above learning from others. We commend his example to those who are more bull-headed than broad-minded.

BANQUET AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

J. W. Paul, formerly Chief Mine Inspector of West Virginia, now attached to the United States Geological Survey, and in charge of the Testing Station at Pittsburgh, gave a very lucid explanation of the technique of shooting on the hard, and briefly sketched the work of the Bureau of Mines and its mine rescue stations scattered throughout the country. Professor Wilson, formerly editor of Mines and Minerals, got off by confessing that he, too, was Welsh, and that he professed to make a decent speech in his life.

James H. Gray pronounced the val officer in a very able manner. He reviewed most that had been said before of a sullen character beginning with the center of the coke region, which he located at Uniontown like all good Pkers do, and ending with an eloquent tribute to the work of Dr. Roberts and others in educating the foreign miner, without whose aid it would be impossible to man the coke plants of the Conneltsville region, and to the miners themselves who make good citizens after they have mastered our language and our laws.

WED IN PITTSBURG.

Miss Eleanor Burns and Joseph McGowan Married at Cathedral.

This morning at 7 o'clock, Joseph McGowan of Lehigh, Pa., and Miss Eleanor Burns of Homestead were united in marriage at St. Paul's cathedral, Pittsburgh, by Bishop Roke Canevin. The bride, who was attended by Miss Katherine McGowan, a sister of the bridegroom, wore a white gown of white silk and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridegroom wore a white tuxedo. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of friends and relatives of the young couple. A well appointed wedding breakfast at which covers were laid only for the bride and groom, and a few near friends, followed at the home of the bride. A color scheme of pink and white prevailed in all the appointments. The bridegroom is well and favorably known in Conneltsville and in Uniontown. For the past 20 years he has been in the employ of the U. S. Steel Corporation. The bride is one of Homestead's most widely known young ladies. After a wedding trip to Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. McGowan will return to Lehigh to reside. Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whaley, Misses Margaret and Bertha Whaley of Conneltsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip McGowan of Lehigh, Pa.

FLOWER MISSION DAY.

Celebrated Last Evening by W. C. T. U., South Conneltsville.

"Flower Mission Day" was celebrated last evening by the W. C. T. U. of South Conneltsville at the home of Miss Elvira Galtman in Gibson avenue. The various apartments were prettily decorated for the occasion in June tints and other cut flowers.

Addresses were delivered by Rev. W. H. Spangler of the United Brethren Church and Mrs. Nellie H. Showman. Miss Anna Bell Lee gave a reading and Miss Alice Galtman rendered a vocal solo in a very pleasing manner. Music was also furnished by a quartette from the Conneltsville Church of South Conneltsville. At the conclusion of the program ice cream and cake were sold for the benefit of the society. About 75 persons were present. The proceeds used for decorating were this morning distributed among the sick of South Conneltsville and the remaining were taken to the Cottage Hospital.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

By Executive Committee of Sunday School Association.

The executive committee of the Fayette County Sabbath School Association met on last Saturday afternoon in the offices of O. P. Markle of Uniontown and organized for the coming year by electing Rev. J. W. Walker, minister of Uniontown, president; J. W. Dawson of Uniontown, vice president; and A. J. Jones of Uniontown, secretary.

It was decided to form a committee for each of the different appointments and make the superintendent chairman of the committee. Rev. C. M. Watson of the local Christian Church, and Mrs. Sara H. Cochran of Dawson, were among those appointed on the advance department committee, while Rev. E. B. Burgess was appointed on the home department committee.

TO PRESIDENT SNOW WHITE.

Children of the Immaculate Conception Congregation.

The children of the Immaculate Conception Church will present an entertainment, "Snow White," this evening in the Solon Theatre. The advance sale of seats is very good and from all indications a large audience will witness the entertainment. Children members of the parochial schools will be awarded diplomas for having completed the grammar course.

Yesterday afternoon a matinee was given in the theatre for the children. There was a large turnout and if the members of the cast handle their parts this evening as well as they did at the matinee there is no doubt but what the audience will be pleased with their work.

QUIET WEDDING.

Of Henry Ottoberg and Miss Mary Chalm at Scotland.

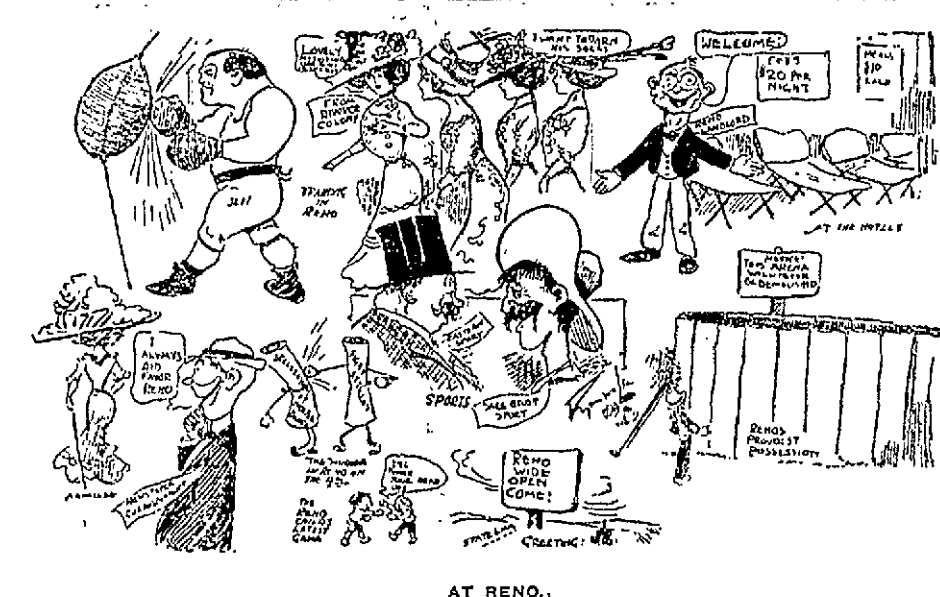

Henry Ottoberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ottoberg of Meadown Mills, near Scotland, and Miss Mary Rita Chalm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chalm of Pittsburg, Scotland, were quietly married last evening at the United Brethren parsonage, Scotland. Rev. W. N. Burnett, the pastor, officiated.

The bridegroom is a well known mill worker at Meadown Mills, while the bride is widely known in and around Scotland. After a wedding trip to the Eastern cities, Mr. and Mrs. Ottoberg will return to Scotland where they will reside.

Ministers' Dining Success.

The annual outing of the Ministerial Association held yesterday at Ohioville was a great success. The Association was well represented and the picnic was pronounced one of the best ever held. The day was spent in bowling, pitching quilts and playing baseball. At noon the picnicers took dinner at the Fernhill Hotel.

Young Men

are recognized as the critical clothes buyers; they give more thought to style in clothes than older men; and they ought to. When a man gets established in business and in society he can afford to be a little less particular, though many such men are still very exacting.

But young men are apt to give so much thought to style that they neglect quality; if the clothes look smart and lively, young fellows are quite likely to forget to insist on having them good also.

There's no reason why you shouldn't have the smartest style, with the best and highest quality.

The Opening Session.
At the opening of the Institute on Tuesday morning Burgess H. S. McCrum welcomed the visitors with a few pointed remarks. He gave the men to understand that they should make themselves perfectly at home and participate in the work in the interest of which the institute was held in Uniontown.

After a fitting response President H. H. Stook delivered a talk on "The Coal Fields of Illinois." He said in part: "The Illinois coal fields cover 55 counties. There are probably 32 other counties underlain by coal in which it has not yet been developed. The industry is therefore very nearly ex-

SCOTSDALE, June 28.—The Eureka Grange is getting ready for their big annual picnic, which is the great summer social event in charge of the farmers of this locality and their friends. This year's outing will be held in the Kolster woods on the south side of town, and easy of access from all directions. Saturday, August 20, is the date of the picnic as set at the one held last year. There will be a program of speaking and music and among the speakers will be J. J. Downs of Mansfield, State Lecturer of the Grange. Others of local fame will deliver addresses. The Eureka Grange is a prosperous organization here of which L. E. Kolster is Master, Fred Jones, the Lecturer, and W. C. Myers the Secretary.

Visiting in East.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Ellis Porter of Los Angeles, California, accompanied by their little son, Master Buchanan, arrived last evening from Washington, D. C., where they had been spending some time. Mr. Porter is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Porter of Summit Mills, and brother of T. W. M. H. G. W., and H. C. Porter of Scottsdale, but has been living for several years in Los Angeles, where he is a member of a large drug firm.

Turned With Metal.

William Wall, a pitman of the U. S. Coal Iron Pipe & Foundry Company, while at work on Monday, had his right foot seriously burned, when some molten metal being poured left its course and splashed over his foot. He was removed to the mill hospital and after having the burn dressed was taken to his home.

Presbyterian Field Day.

The Presbyterian Bible Class will hold a field day at Louisa Park on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, at which time there will be a good-sized list of field sports run off. The meet is being held to assist in the raising of funds for the camping expedition planned for this summer.

Miss Deacon's Recital.

The members of Miss Florentia Deacon's class in the piano will give a pupils' recital at the First Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow evening. These recitals have been held for a number of years and the class being a large one gives a varied program.

Mrs. Dowers Ill.

Many friends will be sorry to learn that Mrs. Annina Dowers, one of the best known women of this locality, is ill at her home just beyond the White school house. A severe attack of stomach trouble has kept her in bed for several days, and her condition remains about as it was a few days ago.

Coke For the Arch.

Passengers on the West Penn line between Scottsdale and Greensburg, on the Mt. Pleasant side of the line, have been remarking on the piles of huge pieces of coke carefully set out on the standard yards and wondered what the coke was thus placed out for. The big pieces are to be used to build the coke area which will be one of the features of the town's development, while Mr. Pleasant observes their Old Home Week, commencing with next Monday.

Will Go West Again.

Albert Lowry, a well known resident as planning to return to Riverside, California, probably in a few weeks, where he will buy land and put up a bungalow. Mr. Lowry spent about a year in California and after being back east for some months has sold his property and will return to California to make his home among the members of the big colony of people from this section who are located there.

Are Going Abroad.

Mrs. John S. Parker and Miss Jane Parker left yesterday for New York, where they will become members of a party of friends who are going to Europe for the summer.

Repairing the Street.

Carnival Shows on West Side Soon to Open Week's Engagement.

The Johnny J. Jones Shows and Trained Wild Animal Exhibition will begin a week's engagement in Connelville. Many good things are promised in the way of root, club shows, and sensational free acts. One of the greatest acts now before the public is Tiny, the doll girl, in her triple parachute jump in which she leaves one parachute for another while thousands of feet in mid-air. An act quite beyond human imagination takes place every afternoon at 5 o'clock. Another feature free act is that of Nero Devil Daffin, who leaps from a slender structure 101 feet in height, into the very jaws of death, but lands safely—every afternoon and evening.

The feature attraction with this great aggregation is the Trained Wild Animal show, which carries a score of the finest specimens of tigers, African and Nubian lions, leopards, Polar bears, hyenas, panthers and St. Bernard wolves in captivity. Each and every one of them trained to perform. Here may also be seen the only troupe of performing semi-civilized Bengal tigers in the world, and Captain Wilson and his wonderfully trained lion.

"Louis," which wrestles with him, is carried upon his shoulders and as a thrilling climax actually cuts a raw meat from his trainer's lip. Among the other feature attractions to be found on the grounds is "Yo Old Plantation," a musical comedy consisting of 22 all-star performers and their own brass band.

"Joyland," a delightful and original feature for young and old embracing mechanical tricks and real surprises. "The Philippine Adagios," smallest couple in the world, direct from the Philippine Islands. "Jumbo and Queen," largest known snakes in captivity. "A congress of living novelties," featuring "Verus" the cigarette fiend. "Jones' Palace of Electricity," featuring the latest work of the Montparnasse. "Carnegie's Working World," a complete city in miniature in full operation and beyond doubt a mechanical masterpiece.

"The Penny Arcade," where for a cent one can amuse themselves. The world's fair ferris wheel. The ever popular merry-go-round and the "Ocean Wave," Connelville's latest craze, all are to be found there.

breaking crowds on the Fourth. Plenty of open cars have been placed in commission and the entire rolling stock of the company will be called upon next Monday morning for the weather does not interfere.

Uniontown's Fourth of July celebration has been centered in the Hippodrome and nothing has been left undone to make it a great success.

How About Your Insurance?

I negotiate for cash all forms of LIFE and ENDOWMENT insurance policies issued on the deferred dividend plan, including policies pledged for loans, paid up policies which have not reached their dividend or estate, not reached and frequently lapsed policies if same can be reinstated. If you are surrendering a policy, see me before you do so. Millions of dollars are lost each year to surrendering policy holders because they did not know their policy had a MARKET VALUE greater than the insurance company's cash or loan value. The place was erected with the end in view of handling big crowds and the price of admission was based on the popular idea in order to afford Fayette county people an opportunity to witness the greatest attractions in the country at a small admission price. SALE STILL HOLDS A FEW CHOICE PIANOS

Choicest Among These Are a Few
Grands That Would Grace
Any Home.

A Few Bargains Remain in Old Standard Makes
Like Chickering, Knabes and Hardmans
Both Grands and Uprights and a Sprinkling of Player-Pianos.

Knabe Grand, was $1,000, now $725. Knabe Upright, was $500, now $315. Knabe Upright, was $350, now $210. Knabe Grand, was $500, now $375.

While this "Preparatory" sale has now been going on three weeks, yet there remain unsold many very fine instruments. Bear in mind that all of our pianos were not included in this cleaning up sale. Only—

Second hand pianos. Slightly used pianos. Discontinued makes. Discontinued styles. Odds and ends.

Very expensive styles. These are all specially priced—being reduced according to circumstances, anywhere from 20 to 30 per cent.

An average of about 25 per cent. would probably be about right, which would mean a reduction of 100 dollars on a 400 dollar piano—a reduction of 150 dollars on a 600 dollar piano, etc.

And it is the pianos remaining unsold among these various lots, to which we refer when we say that there "yet remain unsold many very fine instruments."

Among the "discontinued makes," "discontinued styles" and "expensive styles" are several very choice pianos. There are a few splendid grands, a few choice player pianos and a few very beautiful uprights—odds and ends—one of a style.

Here is truly an opportunity for a thrifty and long headed buyer to get something out of the ordinary for the price of the ordinary.

Several of these pianos are in exquisite Art cases—in Period designs—in Rich and Rare Mahoganies, beautifully marked.

Take advantage of this opportunity. Either come in and look these over or write. It means more than a big saving to you. It means that you will get something out of the ordinary—something that will differentiate your piano from the great mass of pianos.

And don't put it off. There are not enough of these best

She seated herself at the table and scrutinized him with grave, troubled eyes, her chin resting daintily on the crux of arched hands. "You must make it clear to me that, what are you afraid of? What are you afraid of?"

"PERHAPS WITH ONE WOMAN HE COULDN'T BE DEARER."

"I don't know why life dealt me the hand I hold. All I know is I've got to play the cards according to rule. Sometimes I've found that might, hard, I keep wishing and wishing there'd be a different hand dealt, but wishing won't change it. It was the shame that settled it for me."

"I don't think, sir, that you've said anything that concerns you and me very much," she commented, glancing up shyly.

"Concerns you and me?" he echoed sadly, and, rising, he began to pace the room. "Miss Randall, let me tell you something," he added at length, halting and regarding her fixedly. "One evening toward sunset I was leaning over the rail of a Mississippi river steamerboat, and not finding much pleasure in what I was thinking about, I put my hand casually into my pocket and drew out a deck of playing cards. Cards that had been modestly, considerably, I contemplated them a moment and then let them fall from my hand. They dropped into the water in a kind of little shower. And then a curious thing happened. Those shabby old playing cards floated along, while a redoubt all in bloom that somebody had evidently planted too near a cattail bank, upstream. It seemed as if they kind of hoped to go along with it on its journey, but it didn't look right. The redoubt was too pretty for had companions like that. And then, one by one, those shabby playing cards, lying on their backs in the water, began to sink under and drown. Then along came an eddy and caught that pretty redoubt and swung it out into the current, and away it went down the stream, happy and proud in just a glory of sunshine and sparkle. It seemed those old playing cards right. They ought to have been drowned for trying to keep company so high above them. That's what I thought looking down from the boat's rail."

Without conscious effort or any attempt at elevation Kirby had told the little allegory with simple feeling and sincerity. The summer growing more abstracted until at the conclusion it seemed as if he were speaking to his inner self, taking counsel with all that was best in him. Silence ensued, while Adele looked dreamily away, and he continued to stare at the cards, but seeing them not.

"Does a man always stop to think whether he has a right or not?" she ventured at length, speaking so low that he strained forward to catch the words.

"Doesn't a woman always want him to?" he gravely returned.

"Ah, but there is something a woman wants a man to do more than that—she wants him to give up anything till—he is beaten," she whispered.

"Suppose he is the kind of man that ought to be beaten?"

She arose, throwing the scarf about her shoulders, and walked meditatively to the door.

"But couldn't it be perhaps—perhaps with one woman," she whispered, "he couldn't be beaten even then?"

Astonished at her own daring, she gave a little gasp, then inconspicuously, while Kirby stood staring after her, fearful to interpret her words. He turned with a start as Adele strode through the balcony window.

"Well, have you told her goodbye?" snapped Larkin, who had interpreted the foregoing passage as a species of farewell.

"No," said Kirby violently, irritated at the interruption.

"Well, I reckon it's about time to sit down and take a good hard think," warned the other, pacing the room like an excited sentry. "Do you think you could get this girl?" he continued, with heavy sarcasm. "How about it when she finds out who you are—Cameo Kirby?"

"Easy on that name, Larkin!"

"Easy on the name!" bellowed Adele, appealing to the ceiling. "Why, it's been shrieking through this house ever since you got here. There's been two fellows within ten feet of you all the time who never took their eyes off you—that young Venus and Aaron Randall. Do you reckon they think you're Colonel Moreau? Why, I seen them leave the house a short spell back, and I'd be willing to bet my immortal soul they're on our makeups and are planning to raise hell with us. I tell you this place is filthy too hot for Larkin Bunge. You haven't said goodbye to her? Well, then, I'll say goodbye to you. Somebody's got to be loose. I wouldn't be so good to you—nor to me either—in jail. For the last time," he pleaded, making an imploring gesture with his trembling hands, "are you coming with me?"

Kirby, who had quietly resumed his place at the table, now slowly shuffled the deck and carefully inspected the card that had turned up.

"No," he said, with grave finality. "I'm not going with you, my friend. The hand's dealt; I'll play it out."

"For God's sake, General!" implored Adele. "Then I got to quit you. You know what this means to me!" he added despairingly. "I hate to go, but there's no sense in my staying."

"No. And I thank you for staying as long as you have," interrupted Kirby, with a smile, rising and placing his hand on the other's shoulder. "I'm afraid I haven't been thinking very much of you, old partner. But I'm going to stay—call it what you like. However, this is not your hand, Larkin, and I don't want you to help me play it out. Go, by all means, and at once. Did you get a fresh horse?"

"A fresh horse? Why, I wouldn't go direct to ask for the one I come on," cried Larkin, mopping his forehead.

"You don't seem to rightly size up the mess we're in, Gene. I'll be lucky to get out on my own two feet. I don't even know where they put my hat, and I'm skinned to ask for it. Then it isn't no more use my asking you to come."

"No more use than in your staying," said Kirby.

Bunge hesitated for a moment, then thrust out his huge hand.

"Goodby, you damned fool!" he gasped, chucking up.

"Goodby, Larkin, but don't bet that it is goodby. They won't let me. I'll give your horse into town for you tomorrow."

Bunge bestowed a final helpless appeal upon the ceiling, gave his partner's hand a farewell wrench, then lumbered hastily from the room, while Kirby, humming softly to himself, strolled to the open window and, leaning negligently against its frame, gave himself up to retrospection.

"He wanted to be alone; he wanted to think, to dream, to go over and over again every word that Adele had spoken, every smile, every gesture. His thoughts were solely of the immediate present and past. For the future he did not care—neither Tom Randall's homecoming nor his own inevitable marriage. He wondered what he would have been, what the end would have been, had his early life been laid in pleasant lines—less harsh, less lonely. Yes, utter loneliness was a great and sinister factor in molding man's destiny. What if the last of the Kirbys had proved an honor to the old man instead of a professional river gambler? And why was he remaining? Was not the allegory of the rosebush too bitterly true? Why had Adele said those last words? "But couldn't it be perhaps with one woman he couldn't be beaten, even then?"

Yes, it might be, and it would be. Kirby turned on it had been proved when the burning of that. But, even if she were willing and knew him for what he was, could he rightly ask the sacrifice? Yet those words had awakened a fierce longing, had held out a promise of hope, and he could not utterly renounce, not just yet. Perhaps—

It turned as a hand tugged at his sleeve, turned to confront old Croup, who had stolen noiselessly to his side.

"Marcelle Gene, for God's sake look out!" whispered Croup, his face gray with anxiety, his voice trembling with suppressed excitement. "I've feared the too late for you to get away. Marcelle Gene, don't ride out on stable ink! He's crazy, an' if you listen to do quiet out, you'll be killed. I hear big boys countin' down the big road, an' old Croup mighty skeered to 'o' home."

Kirby turned an attentive ear toward the softly stealing south wind—that halting of danger. Yes, the hoof beats were now indistinctly audible, drawing nearer and nearer with every passing second. More than one horse, too—say a dozen, if he was any Judge.

"Thank you for the warning, Croup," he said quietly, preserving his attitude of idle indifference as if discussing the most trivial commonplace. "I quite agree with you that it is too late to think of escape."

A New Rule on Lake Erie is Popular

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Company has established a new method of supplying its patrons with tickets which is bound to meet with the hearty approval of the summer tourist and those who have occasion to travel much or little. The railroad will deliver tickets and sleeping car accommodations at the home, the office or the club free of charge. Persons desiring to make a trip hereafter will not need to go to the ticket office and stand in line waiting their turn, as has been the case in the past.

All that the person desiring tickets has to do is call up the office of the railroad on the phone and tell where they wish to go to and the ticket will be sent to you by a messenger or on request, a member of the ticket office will visit you and furnish any special information you may want. In addition to this the company will also check baggage for the patron, call for and get it and take it to the station for a moderate charge. The new arrangements make it most convenient for those who have to travel to Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Boston, Detroit, Toledo or Pittsburgh, and the company encourages its patrons to give them a test.

"IN A BAD WAY."

Many a Conneltsville Reader Will Feel Grateful For This Information.

When your back gives out; becomes lame, weak or aching; when urinary troubles set in; your kidneys are "in a bad way."

Don't let this trouble you. There is local evidence to prove it. Mrs. Lydia Knight, Francis Ave., Conneltsville, Pa., says: "For ten years kidney trouble kept me in misery and the pains in the small of my back were at times almost unbearable. I was lame when I got up in the morning and the least work tired me. Headaches and dizzy spells were common and often my sight was blurred. Whenever I caught cold it settled in my kidneys and I was annoyed by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. Having Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought to my attention, I commenced their use and in a few weeks they had relieved me. The contents of two boxes of this remedy effected a cure and I have had no cause for complaint since."

Summer Hair Dressing.

Ask A. A. Clark For Parisian Sage, If You Want the Best.

Almost everybody in Conneltsville knows that there is no preparation for the hair that can compare with Parisian Sage.

It cures dandruff, stops falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

It puts radiance and lustre into that dull, lifeless hair that many women possess, and does it in a few days.

It makes hair grow; prevents hair from turning gray and is without doubt the most refreshing and invigorating hair tonic in the world.

It is daintily perfumed and is not in the least sticky or greasy.

In summer, people of refinement use it regularly, because it keeps the scalp cool and free from the odor of perspiration.

On March 25, 1910, Lulu D. Pk. of Raphine, Va., wrote: "Parisian Sage is a wonderful hair restorer; it stopped my hair from falling out and stopped my scalp from itching; also cured the dandruff. I only used one bottle, but I like it so much I am going to use more."

Parisian Sage is sold by druggists everywhere and by A. A. Clark for 25 cents a large bottle. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by American Makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
